Veterans Dance

Well Attended

The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. enjoyed a fine turnout at their second dance of the season at the Barn.

Altho a great many of our old friends had gone to Danville, Illinois to attend the V. F. W. State Convention there were many new attendants from outlying posts.

Much surprise and admiration was shown at the innovation of the dance hall and the Post Club in the Barn.

The Comrades of this post extend their hearty thanks for this fine co-operation. Plans are under way for bigger and better times for all.

New Lenox Banker

Says Business Is Better

Mr. G. F. Krog, cashier of the New Lenox bank, states that business conditions are improving. "Commercial activities have recently displayed a marked improvement," Mr. Krog said, "and we anticipate continued acceleration of industrial affairs tending to eliminate the difficulties which have confronted the nation during the preceding four years."

"Agricultural interests have suffered considerably as a result of the dry weather, and a heavy rain would improve prospects for the future. However, another important factor in the development of farm products, which requires serious consideration is the wide spread invasion of the chinch bug."

New Lenox Outdoor Club Camps in Woods

The Outdoor Club, a local boy's organization, is camping in the Fred Francis woods, north of town, where they have pitched a tent. The club was formed after the Boy Scouts disbanded, and meetings are held every Wednesday night in the Boy Scouts cabin.

New Lenox Team

Defeated 11 to 4

Ruettger's Oil Station baseball team defeated New Lenox 11 to 4 last Sunday in the first game played on the new athletic field which is located on the Lincoln Highway just west of town.

Mokena Merchant

8 Years In Business

George F. Wannemacher, Mokena merchant, is observing his eighth anniversary in the store business this week and is running a special sale in connection with the observance of the event.

Read his adv. in this issue.

Grain Crop Ruined

Farmers in this section say that with the continued hot, dry weather and the savage raids of the chinch bugs, the oat crop will be a failure this year. Wheat and barley fields have just about been ruined and are being plowed under and being planted to soy beans instead. One farmer near Frankfort is plowing under forty acres of an infected field which will be used for soy beans. It is said that the extensive raising of wheat and barley in the last few years has brought on the chinch bug pest. Years ago when much wheat was raised the chinch bugs appeared, but after the farmers quit raising wheat for a number of years, the chinch bugs disappeared. It is feared that the bugs may also attack the corn crop.

With the failure of this year's oat crop, oat prices will greatly advance is the prediction being now made by farmers and elevator men.

Orland Police Chief

Finds Destitute Family In Box Car

Last Thursday night Police Chief John Helenhouse of Orland Park received a telephone call that an automobile was standing on the team track of the Wabash railroad near the I. N. R. Beatty yard. The head lights were being switched on and off.

Upon investigation the chief found a stranded family of eight persons trying to find a place to sleep in an empty box car. They had an old dilapidated car in which they claimed they had come from the south on a trip to Michigan with the hopes of finding work there picking strawberries but failed to get work and were on their way back south. Chief Helenhouse took them to the village hall and let them sleep there. The next morning early, the family moved on their way back to the southland. Beside the father and mother there were four sons and two daughters.

HOT WEATHER

CAUSES DEATH OF MOKENA MAN

George M. Wannemacher, aged 74 years, residing on a farm north of Mokena, died at his home at 6:30 a. m., Wednesday following a stroke of paralysis suffered Sunday morning. The stroke was superinduced by the extremely hot weather of the week. Mr. Wannemacher had been able to be about and his death came quite sudden following the stroke.

Mr. Wannemacher was born at Mokena, July 17, 1859 and resided in this section all his life. In March 1887 he was united in marriage with Miss Nancy Stork of Mokena. To this union four children were born, all of whom are living. Surviving are the widow, three daughters, Nettie, Frieda, Mrs. Carl Wolters, one son Fred and one grand child.

Funeral services from the home on Friday afternoon at 1 p. m. standard time to the Immanuel Lutheran church in Mokena at 1:30 p. m. Rev. Mr. Geffert, officiating. Burial in the Lutheran cemetery near Frankfort.

Burning Load of

Hay Fires Barn On Hyde Park Farm

A big barn on the Hyde Park farm four miles northeast of Orland Park in Palos township, was destroyed by fire Monday afternoon about three o'clock. A load of fresh hay had been hauled up to the barn when the load suddenly burst into flame. The horses were unhitched and saved. The burning hay, however set fire to the barn. A bull was in the barn and he was saved, altho he was quite badly burned so he needed the attention of a veterinarian.

The fire departments of Worth, Blue Island and Orland Park were called but the barn was beyond saving when they arrived. While rushing to the fire the car of Fire Chief John Helenhouse went out of commission and the Chief had to hop a passing car to get to the fire.

Echoes from The Past

The 4th of July celebration in Mokena, so far as a display of genuine patriotism and observance of the time as a holiday is concerned, takes second place for none in America. The program as announced by the posters was duly carried out and there was not an unpleasant incident to mar the general harmony, good nature and enjoyment of the day. The first event of the day was the ball game. This was between the two local clubs, the Stars and the A. V. P. H. Old patriarchs of four score years who hadn't smiled since their youngest son left home came and sat by and were joyed at the feats of youth and strength. It was a closely contested game and it was either club's victory until the finish when the score stood 28 to 25 with the Stars in the long end of the score. At two o'clock in the afternoon the parade occurred and the omnibuses cracker and the large boy and the small bore unmistakable evidence that it was the 4th truly. The crowd assembled at the hall and here the speaking occurred, Mr. A. W. McGovney, the rising young attorney being the orator of the day. His address is highly complimented on all sides and our congratulations are extended to the speaker for the success of his first effort on the platform. Hon. O. McGovney also made a short address greatly pleasing to the audience. In the evening the display of pyrotechnics was creditable indeed and with the decorations on nearly all business and many private houses, the village was truly out in gala attire. At night the grand dance at the hall attracted all the young people and many of the older ones and over 50 couples enjoyed the mazy until a late hour. The music furnished by Frost Bros' orchestra, was superb. Adieu, thou Fourth, till '96 shall bring thee once again.

Club News Notes

MID-JUNE

The sun-drenched air is sweet with clover. As wisps of cloud float slowly over; The gold bees drone the livelong day, While butterflies flit hours away.

The hedges glow with ruby rose, Above a bank where streamlet flows Mid-June, long days of sheer delight And silver moonlit hours of night.

—Clara Edmunds Hemingway.
The Tinley Park Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. Wm. Funk Thursday June 15. Mrs. Werth brought the quilt which is all finish so plans were immediately made to see about selling it. Mrs. Baldwin and Mrs. Berg were to see about this.

The July meeting which is to be held at Niles, Michigan at Mrs. Werth's summer home was discussed. It is rather hard to get enough cars for the ladies, so it was finally decided to have Mrs. Swisher try to charter a bus for the day.

There will be a further notice of this in a later edition of this paper. Mrs. Rodgers, our Civic chairman, spoke of the garden plot at the Rock Island depot and a committee was appointed to go to the next village board meeting and ask for help in this work.

The ladies were then asked to name the new little screened house which Mr. Funk has built, and the name finally decided on was, "The Nook."

Delicious cake, doughnuts and grape juice was served by the hostess.

The Garden Club wishes to thank Mr. John Boyer for the beautiful fir trees which he donated, planted and is taking care of in the garden plot at the depot.

Mr. Boyer has always been a great help to the Garden Club and is always ready and willing to aid them.

We also wish to thank Mr. Wm. Stockman for the shrubbery which he donated to the garden plot. Please watch for the announcement for the July meeting.

Explains What

V. F. W. Stands For

"Every ex-service man will sooner or later require the help or advice of a veteran organization," declares Commander John R. Jones, of Wm. Martin Post No. 725 of the Lincoln Estates in explaining the type of service his organization stands ready to provide for all veterans of all wars.

"What do I get out of it?" is the question that is frequently asked by the veteran invited to join any ex-service man's organization," continued Commander Jones.

"The reply to this question—a problem that often puzzled the general public as well as the veteran who has never affiliated himself with a veteran organization, is amazingly simple.

"In addition to the comradeship he enjoys by mingling with the men with whom he served, every member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars is secure in the knowledge that his loved ones will be cared for in the event of an emergency that makes it impossible for him to carry on. Our V. F. W. National Home at Eaton Rapids, Michigan, with its more than 100 orphans and widows of deceased or totally disabled veterans, is a growing monument to our program of child welfare and the responsibility we assume for his dependents as his comrades.

"Aside from these benefits, the Veterans of Foreign Wars maintains a national service bureau at Washington, D. C., and the facilities of this bureau are constantly available to the members of our organization as well as to ex-service men at large. Working in conjunction with this service bureau our local unit fosters a service bureau that is always ready to assist a disabled and needy comrade. The service officer of our Post can be of distinct help to the average veteran in dozens of different ways."

Oil Stove Explodes, Chicken House Burns

A chicken house and about 200 chickens were destroyed by fire on the farm of Mrs. Borucke, 1½ miles north of Mokena on Wolf Road, Tuesday at mid night.

Frieda, the 13 year old daughter of Mrs. Borucke, lit an oil stove in the chicken house about 12:30. The stove exploded, setting the place on fire. Fortunately the girl's clothes did not catch fire, altho she was slightly burned about the head.

She ran out to the highway and stopped a passing autoist who hurried to Mokena and notified Fire Chief Herman Schweser who quickly gathered together some of the Mokena firemen and went to the fire. There was no chance to save the chicken house or chickens.

HOLD ON TO YOUTH

It's Smart to Be Slender

By Marie H. Callahan, Editor
Modern Beauty Shop Magazine

Good news for those of you whose natural appetite for food is constantly warring against your desire to reduce weight! Don't mind if your friends do tease you about not keeping to your starvation diet, because nutritionists say that you have no business following a too limited diet anyway, for such a regime will tear down your health and, as a matter of fact won't even bring you any nearer to your goal—a beautiful figure—because when weight is too quickly taken off, it leaves the skin flabby—a condition which is certainly not more desirable than plumpness. You should never lose more than two pounds a week.

A balanced diet should be maintained when you are reducing just as at any other time. Here is what should be included in every reducing diet each day, because these foods supply all the elements necessary for health and yet are low in calorie content:

Milk, 1 quart, for calcium, vitamin A and protein quality; vegetables and fruits, 6 servings, for vitamins and minerals; lean meat, 1 serving, for protein quality; eggs, 1 serving for protein quality, vitamin A and iron; butter, not less than 1/2 oz. for vitamin A.

You will notice that fresh milk is included in this diet at the very top of the list. Some people have the mistaken idea that milk is fattening. This is not the case. Fresh milk is not in itself fattening, but is a low calorie food supplying the dietary essentials often lacking in low calorie reducing diets. Probably it is because of its wealth of minerals and vitamins that people have come to think of it as a "rich" food. It is rich but not in fat-producing qualities. Because of the fact that it is our most nearly complete food, at least a pint (if possible a quart) should be included in every diet, reducing, gaining, or normal, for this is the easiest way for you to be sure of having a balanced diet.

Here is a typical 1400-calorie daily reducing menu which will serve as a guide to you in building further daily diets for yourself, or if you write to the Home Economics Dept., Room 900, Engineering Bldg., Chicago, we will be glad to send you menus for two weeks.

BREAKFAST
Grapefruit juice, small glass
Bacon, two strips
French toast, one slice
Coffee
Fresh milk, one glass

LUNCH
Egg and milk shake

DINNER
Steak 6 stalks asparagus
1/2 cup corn 1 tbsp. butter
Celery, lettuce, cucumber, water cress.
onion salad, 1 tsp. French dressing
1/2 quart ice cream
Tea without sugar 1 glass fresh milk

Instead of starving yourself, supplement your dieting with a regular routine of exercise and massage. Walking and swimming are each excellent exercise. Now that flat, boyish figures are no longer in style, many women are interested in knowing how to develop a normal bust line. Try this exercise—push the arms forward on a level with the shoulders, sway them back and forth from side to side, stretching the body upwards on the intake of the breath.

Dairy Day Features Color Organ and Puppet Shows

The Dairy Building will be the central point of attraction for children as well as adults on Friday, June 23, when Dairy Day will be celebrated with the formal presentation of the color organ in the Century of Progress Dairy Building, and a continuous puppet show in the Dairy Theater, about "Why the Cow Jumped Over the Moon," not to mention calves on view in the "back yard," an unusual sight for many city children.

The puppet shows, calves, children's parade and many other features can all be enjoyed by the youngsters for only a nickel, as Friday is Children's Day when they are admitted to the World's Fair grounds for five cents. The Dairy Building itself is free to everyone at all times.

The ceremonial program built around the color organ will be one of the most impressive events of the day, appealing especially to adults. This organ or Clavilux, which is the central spectacle in the Dairy Building, projects all the colors of the rainbow on the world's largest theatrical screen, as part of the dramatic pageant telling the story of milk through the ages. The Clavilux is hailed as the most important development in the show world since the arrival of the talkies, and can be seen at the Fair, only in the Dairy Building.

ORLAND PARK

The Orland Park Welfare Clinic was held in the school auditorium on last Wednesday and 31 children of pre-school age were examined and 29 received free vaccination.

The county highway department has had a force of men engaged in cutting weeds along the highways this week.

Plans are being worked on for the big annual 4th of July picnic which the St. Michael's church will hold in the forest preserve.

The Wolf road and 143rd street are receiving a lot of World's Fair traffic. Greyhound buses are being operated from St. Louis carrying World's Fair visitors over the Maple Road, Wolf Road then on 143rd St., to the Southwest Highway at Orland Park and then on to the Fair grounds.

The Orland Fire Department moved their fire truck from the Zerbs garage where it has been kept since it was bought, to its new quarters in the newly remodeled village hall in which special quarters have been provided for the fire truck and fire department.

E. J. Bechtloff, former teacher in the Orland Park school, and who has been teaching in District 118 in Palos Park, has been re-engaged for another year by that school.

The Orland Park Fire Dept., is planning to take part in the big 4th of July celebration to be staged by the Lemont Fire Department at Lemont, marking their 50th anniversary.

The annual re-union of the Cooper-Sayers-Creer families was held in the forest preserve Sunday. About two hundred guests attended and all enjoyed a wonderful time. Quite a number of out of town guests were in attendance.

BUCKET BRIGADE, CALLED BY OPERATOR, HALTS BLAZE

When the help of outside fire departments was refused, a telephone operator recently took charge of a critical situation at Oxboro Heath, Minn. As a result much property was saved.

The emergency arose when the home of C. E. Armstrong, manager of the Oxboro Lumber Co., caught fire about 6 o'clock in the morning. Mr. Armstrong's home adjoins a lumber yard and other buildings, which were endangered by the flames.

Mrs. Bonnie Carroll, from her switchboard, called sleeping residents of the community, and then tried to get help from the Minneapolis fire department.

The appeal was refused, because Oxboro Heath had not entered into arrangements with the city for fire protection. Appeals to other places were also turned down. Mrs. Carroll then summoned residents of the town and told them to provide themselves with buckets. As a result of their combined efforts, the lumber yard and other buildings were saved, although it was too late to check the blaze in the Armstrong home.

Is the First Woman to Handle President's Calls

For the first time in the history of the White House, a woman will handle a President's personal telephone calls. Miss Louise Hachmeister, a former operator for the New York Telephone Company, became chief telephone operator for the Democratic national campaign committee early in 1932, taking charge of the immense amount of traffic handled over the specially installed switchboards and other telephone facilities placed at campaign headquarters in New York. So ably did she acquit herself that she has been appointed to operate the private branch switchboard in the White House, where picture shows her,

Notables Take Part in Opening of Telephone Service With Philippines

Diagram shows the path of conversation by land lines and radio telephone channel between Washington and Manila on the occasion of the formal opening of telephone service between the United States and the Philippine Islands last March.

Scene in Washington at the opening of telephone service with the Philippines. Seated, l. to r.: Judge E. D. Sykes, chairman, Federal Radio Commission; Assistant Sec'y of the Navy Henry L. Roosevelt; Secretary of War George H. Dern; Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson; Maj. Gen. Irving J. Carr, Chief Signal Officer, U. S. A.; T. G. Miller, vice president, American Telephone and Telegraph Company. Standing are officials of the United States and Philippine governments and of the telephone company.

Words of greeting spoken by Government officials into a telephone in Washington, D. C., at 6:30 P. M. one Thursday last March were heard in the Philippine Islands at 7:30 the following morning. The voice impulses covered the 10,000 miles between the Nation's capital and Manila in less than one second, the apparent interval being due to a 13 hour difference in time between Washington and the islands, and to the International Date Line, which lies in the Pacific Ocean.

This interchange of greetings among official personages in Washington and in Manila marked the opening of commercial radio telephone service between the United States and its most distant dependency. A short wave radio telephone channel now links the Bell System transmitting and receiving stations near San Francisco with those of the Radio Corporation of America near Manila, the latter connecting with the wire lines of the Philippine Long Distance Company.

The opening of the telephone service in the Philippines is a step in the development of the Philippine Islands as a commercial center. The opening of the telephone service in the Philippines is a step in the development of the Philippine Islands as a commercial center.

ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE

The following attractions are offered at the Rialto and Princess Theatres in Joliet:

Sunday thru Tuesday "When Ladies Meet" with Robert Montgomery Ann Harding and Myrna Loy.
Wednesday and Thursday "The Life of Jimmy Dolan", Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Loretta Young.
Friday and Saturday "The Nuisances" with Lee Tracey-Madge Evans, Frank Morgan.

At the Princess Sunday and Monday "Supernatural", Carol Lombard, Randolph Scott. Tuesday and Wednesday "Story of Temple Drake" with Miriam Hopkins, Jack La Rue.
Thursday and Friday "The Sign of the Cross" (Returned by request) with Fredrick March, Claudette Colbert. Saturday (only) "The Boiling Point" with Hoot Gibson.

Last week 7,000 persons took advantage of the healthful atmosphere in the Rialto theatre made possible thru their giant cooling plant. This scientific refrigerator and air purifier changes the air in the entire theatre every 60 seconds without the least trouble of a draft.

An exceptionally strong cast was assembled by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Cosmopolitan for its film version of the Rachel Crothers stage success, "When Ladies Meet", which is coming to the Rialto theatre, on the days above mentioned is very outstanding. Ann Harding and Robert Montgomery are co-starred and the other principal roles are filled by Myrna Loy, Alice Brady and Frank Morgan.

The distinguished Miss Harding whose hits range from "Holiday" to the recent "Animal Kingdom", enacts the publisher's wife in Miss Crothers biting drama of four people whose lives are brought to a climactic point at a seemingly peaceful county week-end party. Montgomery last seen in "Hell Below", is the shrewd young newspaper man who creates a fictitious liaison between himself and the publisher's wife in order to attract the interest of the woman he really loves.

It is Miss Loy, a rising young novelist, whom Montgomery loves, but Miss Loy believes herself to be enamored of the publisher, played by Frank Morgan. It is this cross-complication of affections which forms the unusual dramatic structure of "When Ladies Meet", the plot of which finds its outlet when all four persons concerned are brought together at the country home of Alice Brady and are forced to thresh out their respective emotional complexes.

Dolores Del Rio saves time by taking her daily beauty treatments all at once—drinking her milk while enjoying a sunbath on her private sand lot.

Famous Star "Endorses" Milk and Sunshine

During the last few years there has been such a rush on the part of dowagers, debutantes and duchesses to endorse all the new, manufactured products on the market, that it is real news when a famous actress calmly rises to endorse two of Nature's own old-fashioned health and beauty aids—milk and sunshine.

That is what Dolores Del Rio, the actress of the sylph-like figure has done. She recommends as a daily treatment, milk and sunshine—a quart of one and an hour of the other.

Of course not everyone can have the sun the year around and a private sand lot in his own backyard on which to take a daily sunbath, but almost anyone can have fresh milk in the diet all the time, whether reducing or otherwise. And speaking of reducing, almost anyone can exercise too.

The exercise for this week is as follows: Lie on the bed on the back with the legs extended, and hands clasped over head. Raise the right leg and cross it over the left. Try to touch the bed with the toes as far over to the left as possible. When this exercise is taken, you will find that when you cross the right leg over the left, you will roll onto the left side. Return to the first position. Repeat the exercise with the left leg. Repeat both exercises three times.

Will County's Tax Bill Is Reduced

Reduced tax assessment figures for Will County, received by the State Tax Commission, indicate that the county's tax bill would be reduced $426,831.83, or 0.11 per cent, under the State Tax abatement feature of the proposed retailers' two per cent occupational tax.

Tax reductions in the various townships of Will County, resulting from the operation of the retailers' occupational tax would range from 0.81 per cent to 2.06 per cent. The reductions would apply to the 1933 taxes, payable in 1934, the State Tax Commission said.

"Under the proposed retailers' tax, the proceeds for the first six months only; that is, from July 1 to Jan. 1, would be used for relief purposes. Thereafter, the proceeds would be used to replace the present state tax now assessed against real property.

"Funds for unemployment relief must be obtained at once. Gov. Horner has been advised that Illinois will be without relief funds for the months of August, September, November and December unless the legislature acts at once. Further aid from the Federal government, which has financed more than eighty per cent of the cost of relief work in Illinois during the year ending June 30, 1933, is contingent upon Illinois matching federal funds with its own money.

"There remains to the credit of Illinois only $13,000,000 in federal funds, $7,000,000 payable July 1, and $6,000,000 payable October 1. These allotments will finance relief activities for two months only, July and October, respectively.

"The need for relief funds is clear. Everyone knows that taxes on general property must be reduced. Gov. Horner has advocated the enactment of the retailers' two per cent occupational tax as the only feasible means of providing money for relief purposes. Furthermore, the proposed tax measure is the only legislation before the General Assembly providing for a substantial and much needed reduction in the taxes on general property."

SAFELY CONTROL YOUR WEIGHT

When you have finished the exercise suggested this week, go a little further and see if you can reach the position the motion picture player, Arline Judge, has assumed in this picture. Yes, just see—

Keep Health While You Lose Weight

A few words to those who aren't interested in reducing but are mighty tired of having the wife, mother, daughter or sweetheart sit at meals with a martyr's air, eating only a few bites and making you feel like a beast for enjoying your food.

Nutritional science gives you the authority to tell them that a too rigid diet will not only harm their health but will also hinder them from developing the beautiful figure they are striving for, because fat too quickly removed means flabby skin which is no more desirable than plumpness. Remind them that any diet whether reducing or otherwise, must be well balanced and that they should cut down on the amounts of food but not on the variety.

Also, you might suggest to them that if they accompany their dieting with regular exercise it will help them lose weight more quickly and pleasantly—only of course they should never lose more than about two pounds a week.

Here is one exercise that will be helpful particularly in reducing hips, thighs, and abdomen: Lie on the back on the bed. Clasp the hands under the knees. Try to raise the head from the bed. Then rock forward as far as possible; then rock backward as far as possible. Do this slowly. Repeat two or three times the first day, gradually increasing the number of times, each day.

A COMPANY THIRTY YEARS OLD

Last Friday the Ford Motor Company completed 30 years of automobile making.

It is also my fortieth year at the same job. I made my first engine in 1893, and it still runs. This is the engine that won the Selden Patent Suit—which took the motor car out of the exclusive class, and opened the automobile industry to hundreds of manufacturers who started during the last 30 years.

Some of the men who began with me that June day in 1903, are working here yet. All of the principles we laid down then, are still operative; we find that they have great survival value for the future. To date they have produced and sold over 21,000,000 Ford cars.

Although we created the automobile market we have never thought it was good for anyone to monopolize it. We have always believed that before business could be good for one, it must be good for all. Our discoveries and improvements have always been open to other manufacturers without patent restrictions.

Of course, there is one thing we cannot share—everyone must get it for himself—and that is experience. Money could duplicate our buildings and machines, but it cannot duplicate 40 years of experience. And it is experience that makes a motor car.

But the past does not especially concern me; it has all been a preparation for the future. For myself, I feel that I have just been gathering the tools to do something worth while, and that my real task is still ahead.

Great changes are upon the world. False ideas of every kind are vanishing in the general upheaval. Those who built truly on principle will survive—their service will carry over. Business integrity and commodity honor will be fully justified. And newer and better ways of living will appear.

That is the outlook for this young thirty-year old Company of ours.

ILLINOIS
State News

Illinois inundated the Eighteenth amendment with a million votes. It declared against prohibition 10 to 1 in Chicago and 2½ to 1 downstate. As a whole, the state repudiated the 14 years' dry reign by a vote of 4 to 1. The tremendous majority given the fifty wet delegates to the state convention July 10 overwhelmed the organized drys and surprised the organized liberals. The state thus becomes the ninth to ratify the Twenty-first amendment, which repeals the Eighteenth.

The new Illinois Supreme court resulting from the election is as follows:

First district, Paul Farthing, Democrat, Belleville. Second district, Norman Jones, re-elected without contest, Democrat, Carrolton. Third district, Lott R. Herrick, Democrat, Farmer City. Fourth district, Warren H. Orr, Carthage, holdover, Democrat. Fifth district, Clyde E. Stone, Peoria, holdover, Republican. Sixth district, Elwyn R. Shaw, Democrat, Freeport. Seventh district, Frederic R. De Young, Republican, re-elected without contest.

In Cook county the fusion judicial ticket, mostly Democratic, was elected. In the seventeen downstate circuits, in each of which three judges were named, Democrats won thirty-five seats against fifteen for the Republicans. Of sitting judges, fourteen Republicans were defeated, among them being Julius C. Kern, Carmi; Frederick A. Hill, Joliet, and Harry L. Heer, Galena.

Justice Warren H. Orr, a Democrat from Carthage, will be chief justice of the Illinois Supreme court during the coming year. The office rotates among the justices during their nine year terms, so that each of the seven holds it at least once. Justice Orr, who is forty-six years old, was elected to the court two years ago.

The judges of the Cook County Circuit and Superior courts will serve the first half of their six-year terms at reduced salaries, as the result of a bill signed by Governor Horner at Springfield. The bill reduces the salaries of judges from $15,000 to $13,500 a year, but provides that they shall have annual increases of $500 until in 1933 they regain their former salaries. Another bill signed by the governor cuts the $8,000 annual pay of 51 downstate Circuit judges elected by 10 per cent. The governor vetoed a third bill cutting the $15,000 salaries of Supreme court justices, but he received assurances from all candidates for the Supreme court that they would accept voluntary reductions.

Governor Horner and State's Attorney Courtney of Cook county struck a blow against the most vulnerable point in the armor of Chicago racketeers—the cash box. They announced that in future no contractor or contractors who have affiliations with racketeering labor organizations, or who act under the intimidation of racketeers, will be granted any state, county or city work.

Four more state banks were opened by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett. They are the River Forest State bank, the Anchor State bank, the Middletown State bank, and the First State bank of Fox River Grove.

Frank L. Hooper of Watseka, retiring judge of the Twelfth district, Circuit court, applied for a pension. Judge Hooper retired voluntarily, completing 24 years of service on the bench. He is seventy years old.

STATE BRIEVITIES

Roy Doolin, forty-one, dropped dead in the yard of his home in Litchfield.

John W. Smith, former deputy United States marshal for the Eastern district of Illinois, has been named chief of police of Benton, succeeding E. O. Kelley, deceased.

Charles E. Dox, widely known in the underwriting and insurance field in Chicago since 1900, died following a long illness at his home at Golf, south of Glenview. He was seventy-three years old.

Levi Snively, pioneer resident of Whiteside county, died at his home in Sterling. Mr. Snively and his wife celebrated their seventy-third wedding anniversary last January 8. He was ninety-six years old. Besides the widow, who is ninety, three sons, four daughters and twenty-three grandchildren survive.

Assurance that the Chanute Field air technical school, near Rantoul, would remain where it is, and the possibility that a substantial portion of $100,000,000 might be spent to improve the air corps unit, was expressed by Representative Dobbins, Champaign, to end rumors that the field was to be abandoned.

Joe M. Bond of the Bond Printing company died in Herrin. He was president of the local Illinois Typographical union and had just been elected a delegate to the national convention. He served nine months as mayor to finish out the term of Marshall D. McCormack.

Apparently despondent after a long illness, Joseph Meinhardt, fifty-nine, of Island Grove, hanged himself in the barn of his brother's farm.

The skeleton of a 6½-foot Indian was found in the side of a gravel pit five miles south of Charleston by Tony Johns, truck driver.

"Forgotten Man" Wins First Prize

THE hauntingly beautiful features of this humble American, "The Forgotten Man," will not soon be forgotten by those who once have gazed upon them. The photograph, a masterpiece of portraiture, is the work of J. Vincent Lewis of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, and recently won first prize at the International Exhibition of Pictorial Photography, held at Leicester, Eng. The only prints of it privately owned are in the hands of President Roosevelt and Charles Chaplin.

THE CHILDREN'S EVENING TALE

SHORT-TAIL EXPLAINS THINGS

THERE are times when Peter Rabbit can be as patient as anyone I know. Just let Peter think there is a chance to see something or hear about something he doesn't know about, and his curiosity will give him patience enough to keep him sitting round half the day. So, though Short-Tail the Shrew was gone what seemed like a long time, Peter waited patiently right where Short-Tail had left him. Peter did a lot of wondering about Short-Tail. It was clear, from what Short-Tail had said, that he stored up food for the winter, though a snail certainly seemed a queer thing to store up. Thinking about these things, Peter was full of questions when Short-Tail returned.

"Your storehouse must be quite a distance from here," said he. "What kind of a place is it in?"

Short-Tail grinned. "I wouldn't answer that question for some folks," said he, "but I don't mind answering it for you, because you might hunt for the rest of your life and not find it. I have some little tunnels in the ground and off of these I have some little storehouses. In one of these I am putting all the snails I can find. You have no idea how good they taste in the middle of winter, when a fellow has to run his legs off to get enough to eat." Short-Tail smirked his lips.

"I should think such a little fellow as you would have to sleep all winter or else freeze to death," said Peter.

"Danny Meadow Mouse doesn't sleep, and he doesn't freeze, does he?" retorted Short-Tail, rather sharply. "No sir, I'm just as active in winter as I am in summer. In fact, I am a little more active, if anything, because it is harder work to find enough to eat, and I have to find a lot because food makes heat, you know, and without plenty of food I certainly would freeze."

"But why haven't I seen you in winter?" persisted Peter, looking quite as puzzled as he felt.

"Because you haven't used your eyes, that's all," retorted Short-Tail. "I've seen you more times than I can remember, and occasionally you've seen me, but like a great many other people, you've caught just a glimpse of me and thought I was a Mouse. You've seen my tracks in the snow lots of times, and you've thought they were the tracks of a Mouse. Of course

BETTER TO BE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

BETTER to dig foundations down. Build from the bottom, stone by stone.

Than have the highest house in town. A house not strong, but big alone.

Better to build a life the same. On reputation day by day.

Than have a little sudden fame. A whispered word can blow away.

Better to have a little gold. That you have gathered dime by dime.

Than have so much it can be sold. Because you cannot pay in time.

Better to have a faith secure. That you have mastered, stair by stair.

Than live a life that can't endure. Some unexpected grief or care.

Better to be some humble thing. Yet growing greater-year by year.

Than be a frail and frightened king. Time tumbles from a throne of fear.

Better to climb, if not so far. Just deed by deed, not dream by dream.

Better to seem the thing you are. Than not to be the thing you seem.

FROZEN DESSERTS

THERE is nothing more appetizing and refreshing to serve with the main course of a dinner than:

Lemon Ice.

Make a sirup by boiling four cupfuls of water and two cupfuls of sugar twenty minutes, add three-fourths of a cupful of lemon juice, cool, strain and freeze. A little of the grated rind may be added to the sugar and water, which will give a flavor most people like.

Now that our strawberry season begins early in the year and ends after the ever bearing varieties are seized by the frost, the strawberry season seems never ending. The most delightful of berries, it is a favorite when frozen in ice cream.

Strawberry Ice Cream.

Wash and hull one quart of strawberries. Sprinkle with one and one-fourth cupfuls of sugar mash and let stand several hours then squeeze through a jelly bag. Mix one and one-half cupfuls of rich cream with one and one-half cupfuls of milk, the whites of four well-beaten eggs and one-eighth teaspoonful of salt. Turn into a freezer and freeze to a mush, using three parts of crushed ice to one part of salt, then add the fruit juice and finish freezing. The whites of the stiffly beaten eggs may be added with the juice, making the frozen mixture more delicate when finished. Serve in tall glasses with a large unhulled berry on top.

Sorbet.

Make a sirup by boiling two cupfuls each of sugar and water together for fifteen minutes, then add one can of shredded or grated pineapple, one-half cupful of lemon juice, one and one-third cupfuls of orange juice and one quart of spring water. Freeze to a mush. Serve in frappe glasses.

HIT BEHIND THE BALL IN LONG GRASS

IT'S the exceptional golfer who doesn't find the rough grass at least more than a few times on the golf course. The average golfer does it more times than he generally cares to remember. Such a lie to many is just another golf shot but to Chick Evans a bit different treatment is needed than that employed for a reg-

I try to keep out of sight as much as possible. I have to do a great deal of my hunting among the leaves under the snow, because that is where most of the insects that sleep all winter are to be found. Then I find a lot in the rotted centers of old stumps. I just love to dig around in those."

"And is that all you have to eat, the sleeping bugs and things you can find under the leaves and in old stumps?" exclaimed Peter. "I should think you would have to hustle."

"No," confessed Short-Tail, "that isn't all. If Reddy Fox or Shadow the Weasel, or any other of the hunters about here make a kill I usually know it and have many a good feast on the scraps which they leave, and by picking the bones. Then, I eat beechnuts and some seeds. In fact, I can eat almost anything when I have to. I've never starved yet, and I don't intend to in the future. Excuse me. I'm getting hungry again. I'll be back again soon."

With this, Short-Tail darted away. Watching him, Peter had an uncomfortable feeling that in his movements he was very much like Shadow the Weasel.

ular shot from the fairway. In the first place he holds the club tighter in such a situation, not to the point of rigidity but firm enough so that the grass through which the clubhouse travels has no chance to turn it in the slightest. Secondly instead of directing his shot at the ball Chick aims at a spot in the long grass a bit behind it. The clubhouse continuing its downward arc will thus hit the ball squarely. He uses a relaxed swing even though the grip is tightened here and his follow through is a bit longer than usual. Obviously his intention is to make sure that the ball is hit and hit hard enough to raise it from its close lie.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

SAY NO

FOR some time now a mistaken notion of family control has afflicted the world, especially that part of it which these United States cover. We have always wanted to give children everything possible to make them successful. No children have ever been given the freedom that ours have enjoyed.

It is this freedom that I want to talk about. Nobody born on this earth is, or can be, free. Everyone of us is born tied hand and foot to other people, to circumstances and under laws that bind us securely. Nobody, no power on earth can free us of duties and obligations and burdens. Many mistaken parents and teachers have tried to free children of these obligations of life. The result is hard on the children. It is far kinder to teach a child how to carry a responsibility than it is to teach him to deny it and then have him come face to face with it. It is like sending him out to slay lions without even a sling shot and a handful of pebbles.

The only freedom we can hope to give a child is freedom from ignorance. The first step he takes toward that freedom is when he learns to carry the first responsibility. Children must be taught to endure cheerfully and bravely whatever pain comes their way.

The unmannered child is too common to need emphasis. It is he who rides roughshod over all who come in his way. He is loud, disrespectful, selfish and utterly disliked. Somebody thought it a pity to curb his self-expression and so he lost his way. The spoiled boy who insists upon driving the family car and staying out all hours of the night needs no introduction. We are all well acquainted with him. The young girl who entertains boys in the evenings, smokes cigarettes end to end, and insists that she has her school work well in hand, is a common thorn. All these children are the victims of this mistaken freedom.

If children could rear themselves there would be no need for father or mothers to live longer than the few years necessary to bring the children into being. Nature would attend to that. As a matter of hard fact the infancy of the human offspring is the most prolonged in nature. That means that parents are needed.

It would be a very good thing for the children of this generation to learn that there is a larger freedom to be won than that so easily gained by doing nothing worthwhile. They will discover this when we learn when and how to say no.

"APOLOGIZE AT ONCE"

"I AM having trouble with Ralph. He has become a disciplinary case almost overnight."

"Ralph? Impossible. What's the matter?"

"You know, Bennie? You know what an odd child he is. He never says a slang word. He never forgets his manners. He behaves like an old man. And you know Ralph. He is a good boy but he isn't as good as Bennie. Not nearly. His mother and I have been friends since we were little girls."

"Yesterday Ralph punched Bennie in the nose. It was dreadful. I asked him why he did such a thing and he said, 'Because he makes me sick.' I told him he must apologize to Bennie. I insisted upon it. He went to Bennie and said, 'My mother says I must apologize to you, so I apologized. Just the same, you make me sick.'"

"My mother says that hereafter it will be better for me not to know you," said Bennie. 'And your mother gives me a pain in the neck,' said Ralph."

"He came home and told me all about it and you cannot know how I felt. Instead of making things better he had made them worse. I told him he was to apologize to Bennie's mother and he said, 'I will if you want me to, but I think she is just the same. Apologizing won't do any good as long as she is so snooty to us and makes such a sissy out of Bennie.'"

"It's the first real difficulty we have had with Ralph and we don't know what to do. What shall we do with him?"

Let him alone. This boy is fifteen years old. He is intelligent, helpful, well-mannered, gay. What more can you want? If he thinks that way about a boy or his mother, the best thing to do is to let them stay apart.

I would never ask a child to apologize to anybody. I would wait until the heat of his anger had died down and then I would try to put his behavior before him in truthful, restrained terms. If then he offered to make up with the person he offended, I would try to show him a tactful way out, if I could.

Sometimes troublesome situations arise because somebody's dignity was hurt and demanded an apology from an equally indignant child who refused to give it.

Apologies that are not voluntary never do any good. It was not the child's words and actions that mattered. It was his thinking. Change that and you do something worthwhile. Try to force the change and you only double your trouble. Never mind the apologies. Keep an eye to the thinking.

The May Day Mystery

"Just this: Thayer was alive when Larry Welch went to see him. Larry saw the ring and knew what it meant. He had it out with Thayer and killed him. Then he took his sister's ring off Thayer's finger, because he knew if he left it there it could be traced back to her. Am I right?"

"Durned if I know, John. But whether you are or not, you sure sound reasonable."

The Marland jail bulked forbiddingly against the full moon of a perfect May night. Citizens of Marland were proud of their jail: of its staunch concrete walls, of its marble portico, of the heavy iron bars which proclaimed to an erring world that it would do well not to err here.

Jim Hanvey stood at the curb and commented in complimentary fashion on the building, thereby bringing a thrill to the heart of the local detective. Then they walked through the big gates and thence to the warden's office. The big man was to have access to the prisoners at any time. The warden conducted the two men to the little room which was occupied by Antoinette Peyton.

She rose as they entered: a trim, womanly figure in a dark blue dress. She showed signs of the strain: there were faint circles under the eyes and it was plain that she was making an effort to remain calm. Reagan introduced Hanvey and all three seated themselves.

"You understand, Miss Peyton," said Hanvey quietly, "you don't have to talk if you don't want to."

"I have no objections to talking," she answered calmly.

"Good. I shall have to ask questions which might be kind of—well—direct. Is that all right?"

"Yes."

He liked her cool, quiet, straightforward manner. It was as though she had nothing to hide and nothing to fear.

The big man reached for the golden toothpick and clicked it open. It seemed impossible for him to talk unless his pudgy fingers were busy with that ghastly instrument.

"I'm not going to waste your time with a lot of silly questions, Miss Peyton. I reckon I could start at the beginning and check up with you on all the things I know already just to see if you'd tell me the same story. But I won't."

"Thank you," said Tony gratefully. "I'm only going to ask you about those things that nobody else can tell me." A broad, engaging grin split Jim's lips. "That's fair enough, ain't it?"

"Yes."

"Now the first important thing I've got to find out is this, Miss Peyton: What was your relationship to Pat Thayer? What I mean is: What right had you bawling him out for making love to another girl?"

Tony's face flushed, and, for an instant, her eyes flashed. She answered rather coldly:

"I think you're presuming a good deal, aren't you, Mr. Hanvey?"

"No ma'am. Honest, I ain't as dumb as I look. I know there was something between you and Thayer. Maybe it was jealousy—maybe something else. But it's awful important that I find out."

"Why?"

"Because if I don't know the truth, I've got to figure things my own way. You see, that's a sort of link in the chain that's got to be welded . . . and one of the most important things is what there was between you and Thayer."

"I don't see . . ."

"I'm sorry if you don't," pleaded Hanvey, "because it ain't helping nobody for you not to tell me the truth. Even if I know the truth it couldn't hurt you any worse than having me think things. That is, unless you really killed him yourself—"

"Good G—d!"

"I didn't say you did. But listen, Miss Peyton: Put yourself in my place. What do I find out? You run across Thayer making love to a pretty little blond. You give him thunder—and it's clear there's something between you. At the end of that interview you're threatening each other. Then a little later you walk straight up to Thayer's room in the fraternity house and a little while after you leave they find him dead. Could the real truth hurt you much worse than that?"

Tony rose and walked the length of her cell. Then she stood in front of Jim Hanvey and gazed intently into his round face and kindly gray eyes.

"I feel that I should speak frankly. I—I have a hunch that you're not trying to trick me."

"Thank you kindly, ma'am. And you've got me right: I swear you have."

She bit her lip, then spoke sharply. "You are wondering how I dared to go to Mr. Thayer's room in the fraternity house when I knew it would start the whole campus gossiping, aren't you. Therefore you know I had a good reason for going there?"

"That's it, Miss Peyton. Because no matter what you went for, or what happened after you got there, it was a cinch that you were going to start the whole campus talking."

"That," announced Tony bravely, "is precisely why I went there."

"To start gossip?"

"Just that."

"Why?"

"So the truth would come out, and when it did, Pat would be forced to let Ivy Welch alone."

"The truth? What is the truth, Miss Peyton?"

Tony did not evade. Her answer came in a firm, cool voice:

"I am Pat Thayer's wife!"

Jim blinked and fumbled for his toothpick. There was an audible gasp from John Reagan. And then, as they listened in stupefied silence, Tony told—in a level, emotionless tone—of how she had happened to marry Pat Thayer and of what had occurred since that time. When she finished she seated herself, limp and frightened. Suppose she had done the wrong thing? Suppose . . . her eyes quested hungrily for Jim Hanvey. He seemed so comfortably friendly. There was something in his solid calmness which compelled one to avoid evasion.

"What Right Had You Bawling Him Out for Making Love to Another Girl?"

One gathered that he instinctively knew truth from falsehood; that he respected the former and despised the latter. The girl took a deep breath. Her brain told her that she had erred; instinct said that she had done the best thing.

"And so you see," she said, after a long pause, "I had to protect Ivy. I knew Pat Thayer was married—but she didn't."

"I see. . . And, of course, you were not jealous, were you?"

"Of him?" She gave a short, bitter laugh. "He is dead now—and this may not sound well: but I despised him."

"That explains a good deal. . . ." It was as though Hanvey were talking to himself. "Of course, no one could be expected to guess that you were Thayer's wife. And nobody else knew it, did they, Miss Peyton?"

"No. . . ." The color flooded her cheeks.

"You mean: Not then?" prompted Hanvey.

Reagan's head jerked up sharply. He saw the girl start with surprise. He saw her cheeks blanch. Then he looked curiously at Hanvey. The big man seemed totally disinterested. He was gazing fondly at the gleaming toothpick—apparently unmindful of the vital question he had asked. Reagan had just concluded that Jim didn't even know what he had stumbled upon when Hanvey repeated his question in a quiet, conversational tone:

"Even Larry Welch didn't know then that you were Thayer's wife, did he?"

And now Tony Peyton was defiantly on guard. Her tiny fists were clenched and she was sitting forward tensely.

"No," she said sharply. "He didn't know."

"But," suggested Jim, "you told him a few minutes later, didn't you?"

"Who says I did?"

"Gosh! Miss Peyton—I didn't say anybody said so. I was just asking: that's all. And please don't get all worked up. You'd think I was trying to trap you. I ain't; honest, I ain't."

"But you said—"

"I just suggested that you went straight to Larry Welch and told him the truth. Ain't that a fact?"

"I think I'd rather not discuss it any more, Mr. Hanvey. I'm afraid I've already said entirely too much."

Jim didn't argue. He rose ponderously and bowed with a queer courtliness.

"That's all right, Miss Peyton. I promised you I wouldn't try any police tricks on you, and I won't. I'm trying to help, not hurt, and I can't help unless I get the truth. But I ain't advising you to tell me a thing you don't want. So me and Mr. Reagan will say much obliged—and good night."

He moved toward the door. Reagan, inwardly seething at Hanvey's stupidity, followed reluctantly.

As Jim opened the door, the girl spoke.

"Wait. Please."

"Yes, Miss?"

She faced them bravely. "I suppose I'm a fool," she said. "But I believe I can trust you. If you don't mind staying a little longer, I'll be glad to tell you the whole truth."

Even yet Hanvey did not press his advantage. Reagan was fighting to restrain his own impatience—and meeting with little success. Here was the big chance: an opportunity to gather important facts from a woman who had been locked up for two days and was willing to talk.

But Reagan was a good sport. If he didn't understand Hanvey's slow, friendly, ponderous methods, he could at least follow them since he himself had offered the case to the fat man.

They seated themselves once more and Tony spoke in a brittle voice.

"What is it first, Mr. Hanvey?"

"We—well, suppose we start with your visit to Larry Welch. What did he say when you told him you were married to Thayer? Was he sore?"

"No-o. I wouldn't say that exactly? The thing seemed to shock him."

"Did he say anything about seeing Thayer?"

"Yes. He wanted to go right over, but I begged him not to."

"Why?"

"Because I wanted to see Pat first."

"For what reason, Miss Peyton?"

"Because . . . well, there's another detail we left out. Larry was quite determined that Pat should not go with Ivy any more. I had a right to seal his lips about my marriage to Pat, but I had no right to say that he shouldn't keep him from going with Ivy. So I asked him not to go over until I had seen Pat myself."

"Why?"

She met Jim's kindly eyes levelly.

"I was afraid."

"Of what?"

"A fight. Pat Thayer was a big man. Larry is perhaps more powerful. So far as I know, Mr. Thayer was not a coward, and no man can very well permit another to order him away from a girl without—well, without resenting it."

"I see. . . And why were you afraid of a fight?"

"Because of the scandal," she answered promptly. "Larry is an instructor here. He is about to earn his Master's degree. It wouldn't have been nice. . . ."

"You weren't afraid of any serious results—that is, physical results?"

"No. Of course my sympathies were all with Larry, and I knew he could handle Mr. Thayer."

Jim focused his eyes on the toothpick. "You are in love with Larry Welch?"

Her cheek grew white, but she did not evade.

"Yes."

"Does he know it?"

"Yes."

"How long has he known it?"

"I think he has known it for a long time, but I didn't put it into words until—until day before yesterday."

"I see. . . Day before yesterday Larry learned that a married man was fooling with his kid sister. He learned that you could not marry him because you were married to another man—the same man. He learned of the petty blackmail which Thayer had practiced on you. It makes a rather damning lineup, doesn't it, Miss Peyton?"

"Yes. And I've told it to you straight because I believe Larry is innocent."

"I hope so. . . Now would you mind telling me what happened when you went to see Thayer at the fraternity house?"

"I went there with a definite object in mind, Mr. Hanvey. A girl cannot visit a man's room in a fraternity house without starting all kinds of gossip. I told him that I had done that so I would have no choice but to announce our marriage. You see, I felt that I could spike his guns that way."

"For what?"

"So that he'd have to drop Ivy Welch—or else she would drop him. And that would make it unnecessary for Larry to interfere."

"You were still afraid of what might happen between Larry and Thayer?"

"Yes—and I regretted having told Larry. But things happened so fast and I had been under such a strain for so long a time. . . I—I just wanted someone to talk to."

"While you were in Thayer's room . . . ?"

"He was furious, of course. We quarreled bitterly. I suppose I was as angry as he was. And then I left."

"Where was he when you left, Miss Peyton?"

"Standing near the dresser."

"Alive?"

She caught her breath sharply. "Of course. . . Surely you don't think . . . ?"

"I had to ask you that. I'm sorry. Did you know that Larry Welch has been arrested?"

"Yes. . . ." She spoke almost in a whisper.

"Do you realize that everything you have told me serves to incriminate him?"

"Yes." She flung her head back. "I don't believe the truth can hurt anybody. I know Larry didn't do it, just as I know that I didn't. I've told the plain, straight truth, and that's all. It's what Larry would have me do."

"It isn't what he has done," said Jim softly. "He hasn't been honest with us."

"He couldn't be. He gave me his word that he wouldn't tell anybody I was Pat Thayer's wife."

REVIEW: JESUS OUR LORD AND SAVIOUR

GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you. Matt. 28:19, 20.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Our Friend.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Our Saviour and Lord.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Trusting and Obeying Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Giving Ourselves Unreservedly to Christ.

Two methods are suggested which may be used for the senior and adult classes.

I. A Perplexities Review.

This is suggested by Dr. Amos R. Wells. A perplexity arising from each lesson of the quarter should be assigned to a member of the class a week ahead of time. Suggestions:

April 2. Why is sickness allowed in the world?

April 9. Why is the Christian life often so difficult?

April 16. Why does our Christianity sometimes lack splendor?

April 23. Why do some men grow hard as they grow older?

April 30. How can we give without pauperizing the needy?

May 7. Why must some be masters and others servants?

May 14. What degree of ambition is wise?

May 21. How can we conduct controversy without bitterness?

May 28. What proportion of our income should go to the church?

June 4. How can we make sure of a complete loyalty to Christ?

June 11. How is it possible for us to get rid of sin?

June 18. How can we be certain of living again?

II. The Summary Method.

The aim in the use of this method is to cast up to view the leading facts and deduce from them the leading lesson. The following is suggested:

Lesson for April 2.

Jesus responded to the fervent appeal of the Syrophenician woman to help her demon-possessed daughter. His sympathy is as wide as the race, and his power unlimited.

Lesson for April 9.

Before going to the cross, Jesus retired with his disciples to prepare them for the severe trial through which they were to pass. He instructed them concerning his atoning death, resurrection, and second coming.

Lesson for April 16.

Jesus transfigured. Two men from the upper world were sent to converse with Jesus about his approaching death at Jerusalem, the thing about which the disciples refused to talk.

Lesson for April 23.

The disciples were so steeped in selfishness that they were wrangling over official position while the Lord was facing the cross.

Lesson for April 30.

Jesus as a son was faithful to his parents. In this lesson he sets forth the truth concerning marriage, which is the foundation of the home.

Lesson for May 7.

The supreme purpose of Christ's coming into the world was to die for the salvation of sinners. Through the cross, judgment was passed upon the world, and Satan was cast out.

Lesson for May 14.

Jesus entered Jerusalem and officially presented himself as King to the Jewish nation, according to prophecy. He exercised kingly authority in cursing the fig tree and driving out the money changers.

Lesson for May 21.

The Pharisees, scribes, and Sadducees sought to entrap Jesus so as to hinder his work. The very ones who should have welcomed him sought to destroy him.

Lesson for May 28.

This lesson affords a study of a prophetic outline of events in the interval between Christ's crucifixion and his second coming. According to this outline the present age shows increasing evidence of the near coming of the Lord.

Lesson for June 4.

The black crime of Jesus' betrayal was committed immediately following the beautiful act of Mary's devotion to the Lord (John 12:1).

Lesson for June 11.

The crucifixion of Christ is the grand climax of the lessons for the last six months, and without apprehending its significance, all other lessons are meaningless. Christ saves, not by his ethical teaching, but by his shed blood.

Lesson for June 18.

The resurrection of Christ was announced by an angel, and he was afterward seen by many. Conviction touching the reality of Christ's resurrection is absolutely necessary in order to be an effective witness for him.

The Other Road

"A life of self-effort will never reach the place where we shall glorify God; the other road is a road of faith; if you would believe, thou shalt see the glory of God: let him do the thing for us."—Rev. Guy H. King.

St. John's Gospel

"St. John's gospel begins with the son in the bosom of the father (1, 18), and it ends with the sinner in the bosom of the son" (13, 23).—Mr. R. B. Stewart.

TIME AND TIDE

It is a royal experience to be ill spoken of for good deeds.

Nature works on a method of all for each and each for all.

He was fresh and full of faith that something would turn up.

PITH AND POINT

If your visitors are only stylish that makes up for a lot.

Men are more satirical from vanity than from malice.

Our envy always outlives the happiness of those we envy.

No one is satisfied with one successful operation in speculation.

All you can do with old bad habits is to hold them back as long as you can.

To be always good others must believe that they can never appear wicked to us.

In writing poetry you won't have an inspiration unless you keep thinking of inspiration.

Men's general objection to society functions is that they don't like to keep up to concert pitch.

Timidity is a fault for which it is dangerous to reprove persons whom we wish to correct of it.

Always write your diary as if you knew somebody would read it; for somebody invariably will.

You won't find the great open spaces on the Sunday afternoon highway. Park the car and strike out across the fields.

When Friend Boy's appetite is almost at the vanishing point at meal-time, make an immediate examination of the pantry.

TO THINK ABOUT

With thee conversing I forget the way.

Books and friends should be few and good.

It is always the unreadable that occurs.

We usually take a confidant to have an approver.

True valor braves danger without neglecting resources.

Two sorts of men do not reflect—the terrified and the rash man.

Everything, even piety, is dangerous in a man without judgment.

The earnest desire of succeeding is almost always a prognostic of success.

We ought only to be astonished that we are still able to be astonished.

Whoever places importance in little things is subject to treat slightly the most essential.

There are few people who are more often in the wrong than those who cannot endure to be so.

ALONG THE TIES

Of the 777,000 miles of trackage in the world, 33.2 per cent has been built by Americans.

The railroads seem to continue to win all disputes with trucks and busses at grade crossings.

Despite motor rivalry, steam railroads still handle nearly 76 per cent of the country's freight.

Railroads handled an average of 10.6 tons of freight last year for every person in the United States.

There are 250,532 miles of railroads of all classes in this country, counting those with grass growing between the rails.

Albania, with a population of more than a million in an area of about 11,600 square miles, contains important mineral deposits, but has no railroad, which prevents their development.

THIS AND THAT

Every day is the pupil of the day before.

Danger is never overcome without danger.

The weak in courage is strong in cunning.

If a man deceive me once, shame on him; if twice, shame on me.

All great alterations in human affairs are produced by compromise.

Summer Time Is
"Reducing Time"

Lecturing before women's groups in the Chicago area, Miss Eleanor Rhoads, nutritionist of the Milk Foundation, Incorporated, is reminding women that "summertime is reducing time" because in the summer the appetite is naturally less and the foods that are desired are the cooling, "reducing" ones such as fresh milk, fruits and vegetables which are conveniently low in calories or heat-producing elements.

A point Miss Rhoads is stressing is the necessity for maintaining a balanced diet when reducing just as at any other time. She lists these foods as the indispensable in the daily reducing diet: One quart of milk for calcium, vitamin A and protein; six servings of vegetables and fruits for vitamins and minerals; one serving of lean meat for protein; one serving of eggs for protein, vitamin A and iron; and not less than one-half ounce of butter, for vitamin A.

Another suggestion made by Miss Rhoads is that now with the longer days it is easier for busy women to find time to do their exercises, which need not be exhausting ones, as latest information indicates that they can well be built around stretching movements.

KU KLUX HOLD MEETING NEAR NEW LENOX

There was much activity in the vicinity of New Lenox last Saturday afternoon and evening when a Ku Klux Klan picnic and naturalization was sponsored by the Will County Klan No. 153 five miles north of
New Lenox in a grove.

Fully four thousand Klansmen from all over the state and from Indiana points were present. Most of the traffic was routed thru New Lenox from the Lincoln highway onto Cedar Street, then north to the grove. The traffic was so heavy the Rock Island placed a special flagman at the New Lenox crossing until after midnight.

An address was given by the Grand Dragon of the realm of Illinois. The Klansmen wore robes.

A Cook County Klan Assn. Degree Team put on a ceremony of naturalization K-Uno degree.

Refreshments were served on the grounds.

This is the first open air Klan meeting held in this section for a number of years.

HOLD ON TO YOUTH

Your Eyes Reflect Your Health

By Marie H. Callahan, Editor
Modern Beauty Shop Magazine

If your vitality is low, if you have been keeping late hours, or working under too great a nervous tension, your eyes will probably be the first part of you to be noticeably affected.
You are all familiar with the dark circles under your eyes that weariness brings on. And your physical condition is also largely responsible for a "lack lustre" quality in the eyes themselves. Or eyestrain may have this effect.

If you had to hold your arm in one position all day long you would naturally expect to feel discomfort in the muscles of that arm; yet a large proportion of people employed in indoor work are keeping their eyes in the same position—downward—all day long without doing anything to counteract the effect of the constant strain. True, the eyes do not at first give the sharp, painful warning of overstrain that your arm thus abused would, but the strain is there just the same. To offset the effect of this constant downward looking, try deliberately exercising your eye muscles every day. In addition to this, look up whenever you can—when walking, traveling the street car to and from work, and so on.

After doing close work for any length of time, shut your eyes for a minute; then focus them on a distant object. Wash the eyes twice a day in an eye cup full of boric acid solution. At night, massage a little food cream around them.

Then there are definite eye diseases that detract from eye beauty. Sties are usually brought on by poor physical condition. Gentle massage with clean fingers and hot compresses of boric acid solution can be used as immediate treatment for this condition.
But the most important thing in treating this eye trouble, as in many eye troubles, is to build up the general health, making sure that your diet is built around fresh milk, fruits, and vegetables and that you have plenty of sleep, and exercise in the fresh air.

Xerophthalmia is an eye disease caused by lack of Vitamin A. Lack of lime in the diet will also cause eye disturbances. The best source of both these elements is fresh milk.

We can't change the actual color of our eyes but we can do wonders toward beautifying them. Grooming of lashes and eyebrows is important. And recently the eye make-ups which are on the market have been greatly improved until now when artistically applied, eye shadowing may be suitably even in the daytime.

Of course, just as the color of the sky will be reflected in the color of a lake or stream, so also can the colors of a woman's dress, hat or jewelry affect the seeming color of her eyes. Those with pale blue eyes should avoid strong, bright blue and wear dark, soft, misty blue. Orange will give strength to a faint blue.
Gray-eyed people should shun browns, yellows, or warm reds, and wear instead soft blues, cool greens, and purplish reds.

Beautiful, expressive eyes can transform your entire appearance, so surely it is worthwhile to give them most careful attention.

EDITORIAL SPOTLIGHT

A NEWSPAPER'S VIEW—Newburyport, Mass., Daily News
One of the most difficult experiences of a period when it has been necessary to practice supreme economy is the sacrifice of the telephone.
A surprisingly large number of people here have ordered their phones disconnected, although orders are now floating in to have the service resumed, as people return to work. The person who has never known the convenience of having a telephone in his home does not sense a dependence upon the service, but to relinquish it after enjoying the telephone for years is an unpleasant experience, indeed. We are accustomed to relying on the telephone for help in case of emergency. The telephone has probably saved countless thousands in averting fire losses, when a few minutes, following the discovery of a fire, makes worlds of difference.
To be able to summon a doctor without delay is productive of a sense of security. These are but two of the emergencies in which the telephone is a reliable servant. In considering household retrenchment, removal of the telephone is the last sacrifice to be encountered and replacing of the installation is one of the first tasks ordered when one gets back to work.
